

Feel the noise: Goodwood honours Henry Hope-Frost

For immediate release: March 17, 2018

The Goodwood Motor Circuit shook to the sound of race engines being revved to valve bounce in honour of the late Henry Hope-Frost. The hugely-popular commentator and journalist died in a road accident last week, and the loss of 'Fever' is a palpable one within the motor sport community. A minute's noise was a fitting tribute to a man whose love of racing cars and the people who guided them was infectious. RIP Henry – you will be missed.

For those wishing to make a donation to the Hope-Frost family, a JustGiving page has been created and donations can be made at the following link:
